

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

REPORT OF THE PRESIDENT.

To the People of St. Louis:

The thirty-sixth annual report of the Board of President and Directors of the St. Louis Public Schools, being for the year ending June 30, 1890, is herewith submitted; the detailed items of interest relating to the financial and educational department will be found in the statements of the Secretary and Superintendent, also the reports of the Principal of our High and Normal Schools, and the Librarian of our Public Library.

The total receipts during the year amounted to	$1,138,812 68
Cash balance on hand at the close of the last fiscal year.....	57,760 02
	$1,196,572 70
The total expenditures (including $100,000 to the Building Fund) were.....	1,081,214 18
Balance on hand at the end of the year.....	$115,358 52

In this connection it will be of interest to note the condition of the revenue fund at the close of each fiscal year since 1887, and for that purpose the following comparative statement is given :—

Year ending June 30th, 1887, deficit	$ 7,965 20
“ “ “ 1888, surplus	10,322 97
“ “ “ 1889, surplus	57,760 02
“ “ “ 1890, surplus	115,358 52

The large surplus in the revenue fund at the end of last year enabled the Board to appropriate the sum of $200,000.00 for additional school accommodations required in different portions of the city. Of this sum, $25,000.00 was set apart for the new High School, the erection of which ought to commence at once.

As outlined in the report of my predecessor, Mr. Frederick N. Judson, the school accommodations were increased in the first part of the year by the addition of thirty new rooms.

It is anticipated that thirty-four new rooms will be built next year, and if the finances of the Board permit, an equal number of rooms should be added during each of the next three years, at the end of which time there will be accommodations for all pupils desiring to attend our public schools.

The following tabular statement furnishes at a glance a clear idea of the extent of our school system :—

Number of schools.....	81
Number of school buildings.....	111
Number of rooms.....	939
Number of seats.....	51,645
Number of pupils enrolled.....	58,316
Average number of pupils belonging... ..	44,983
Number of teachers.....	1,154

There are at present thirty-eight kindergartens having full sessions and three kindergartens having only morning sessions.

Our kindergartens, which have always merited the high praise so generally bestowed by educators throughout this country, are being gradually introduced (when funds warrant it) into all our large schools, both for white and colored children.

Within two days of the close of the fiscal year (June 28, 1890) this Board and the friends of our public schools suffered a severe loss in the death of our faithful and efficient Secretary and Treasurer, Milton H. Wash, who, during twenty years labored unceasingly and with rare intelligence for the welfare of the Public Schools of St. Louis.

In closing this report, I consider it my duty to refer to an unfortunate factional contest in the Board regarding which I deem it unwise to go into particulars here ; it occasioned serious delay (and an outlay of a considerable amount of money) in the erection of the new school buildings and additions that had been determined upon, and will cause the unnecessary overcrowding of a number of our schools during the next scholastic year.

I commend for faithful and efficient service the officers, teachers and other employes of the Board.

Respectfully,

C. F. MILLER,
President.

ANNUAL REPORT

— OF THE —

SUPERINTENDENT.

OFFICE OF SUPERINTENDENT PUBLIC SCHOOLS, }
ST. LOUIS, AUGUST 1, 1890.

To the Board of President and Directors of the St. Louis Public Schools :

GENTLEMEN—I have the honor to submit herewith the annual report of the schools under your charge, for the year ending June 30th, 1890, the same being the Thirty-sixth Annual Report of the St. Louis Public Schools.

In the appendix of this report a detailed statement is given for each school, showing enrollment, attendance, number of teachers, size of rooms, manner of heating, and various other items of information that can be shown in tabulated form.

The following summary is derived from these tables and gives a general survey of the entire system, which includes kindergartens, district schools, evening schools, a high school, a normal school, and a school for deaf mutes.

There are seventy-eight schools (exclusive of evening schools) in this system, varying in size from a school of one room to one of twenty-six rooms. The largest of our school buildings has twenty-four rooms. Some of the larger schools occupy two or more buildings located in the same yard or within the same city block.

During the year six free evening schools were kept open three evenings each week, during twenty weeks.

Kindergartens are connected with forty-one of the district schools, or with nearly all of the schools having ten or more rooms.

At six of these forty-one schools, separate buildings have been erected in the school yard for kindergarten purposes exclusively. In all other cases the kindergartens occupy rooms in the school buildings. In thirty-five of these schools the children attend kindergarten only one-half of each day, thus making two sets of kindergarten pupils, or two kindergartens to each of these schools. In six of these schools the children are allowed to attend kindergarten all day. Thus it will be seen that there are seventy-six kindergartens connected with the district schools.

Over sixty-one thousand pupils were enrolled in the public schools during the year, and these were taught by twelve hundred and nine teachers, including the principals and supervisors.

The schools occupy one hundred and eleven buildings, varying in size to meet the necessities of their respective localities. These buildings have a seating capacity for fifty-two thousand pupils.

SCHOOL STATISTICS.

Population of the City of St. Louis, June 1, 1890, 460,357.

School population, June 1, 1885 (between the ages of six and twenty) : —

	WHITE.	COLORED.	TOTAL.
Male.....	52,611	2,445	55,056
Female.....	50,901	2,497	53,398

Number enrolled in the Private and Parochial Schools, about....	25,000
Estimated number of persons of school age not enrolled in either Public or Private Schools.....	34,341

The population of the city as given above is from the census of 1890. A comparison of these figures with the estimated population given in the school report for the preceding year shows that the estimate for that year could not have been very far from the truth.

We have never been able to obtain an accurate statement of the number of pupils enrolled in the private schools of this city, for any one year ; but we believe the number is not far from twenty-five thousand.

The variation in the items of attendance for the last twenty-seven years is shown in the above table. Seventy-six per cent. of the entire number of pupils enrolled, or a little over forty-four thousand pupils, were not tardy a single time during their attendance at school. While the per cent. of pupils not tardy has increased, the number of cases of tardiness of pupils shows an increase by a greater per cent.

It will be seen, from the above table, that we report no pupils under six years of age. In accordance with the law, children under six and over twenty years of age cannot be admitted to the public schools. The law provides no means by which to determine the ages of those applying for admission. There are many excellent reasons why the six-year limitation should be removed, or, at least, changed to four or five years.

The per cents of pupils belonging in the respective grades at the close of each quarter, for the last four years, are given in the above tables. The average per cent. of pupils belonging at the close of quarter in the respective grades, varies so little from the average number belonging in each grade during the quarter that their per cents can be used as a basis for the comparison of the number of pupils in the various grades.

Of the entire average number belonging, 3.06 per cent. were in the Normal and the High School, 16.18 per cent. were in the four higher grades of the District Schools, and 80.76 per cent. were in the four lower grades. This table shows a very great increase in the number of pupils in the High School—a greater increase than has been shown in any one year for the last fifteen years. Many reasons have been given for this increase ; but one thing is certain, this increase is not due to the admission of pupils to the High School who are not qualified to do the required work, for the High School records show that the per cent. of delinquents is not greater than in former years. The best test as to the pupil's fitness for the High School is his ability to do the work.

In the following table the per cents of pupils in the various grades for the last fifteen years is given :

The first column in the above table gives the per cent. that the pupils in the Normal School are of the total number attending the public schools, and shows the variation from year to year of the number attending the Normal. This variation is due mostly to the demand for teachers, for whenever the supply of teachers is so great that the graduates of the Normal School are obliged to wait some time before receiving an appointment, others are deterred from entering the Normal, preferring to seek other employment or to prepare for other vocations that seem to promise more immediate returns.

The per cents as given in the column for the High School present very marked changes during the last fifteen years. The chief cause affecting the showing in this column is the change that was made, in 1878, in the conditions for admission to the High School. The recent increase in the proportionate number of pupils attending the High School is due mostly to the growing confidence, in the community, in the value of secondary education, as a preparation for future activity.

In the above table, the "whole number enrolled in the day schools" includes all pupils who have attended any of the schools during any portion of this school year. Duplicate registration caused by transfers from one school to another are not included in this number.

The "number belonging" is determined in the following manner: In all cases of absence of pupils from school, whether with intention of returning or not, and whether the absence be occasioned by sickness or other causes, including even the suspension of pupils, and excepting only the cases of transfer to some other school in the city, the pupil's name is kept on the roll as "belonging," for three days, and is dropped on the beginning of the fourth day, in case the pupil does not return.

The average number in daily attendance is ninety-one per cent. of the number belonging. The average number belonging to each teacher this year was forty-seven. There has been but little variation for several years in this item.

The character of the school and the grades of pupils in attendance determine the number of pupils assigned to each teacher. We base all calculations upon the number belonging, and not upon the number in attendance. The average difference between the number belonging to a teacher, and the actual number in attendance on any one day, is from three to five pupils in the District Schools; but in the High School the variation between these two is slight.

Twenty pupils are required to each teacher in the Normal School; thirty, in the High School; fifty, in the four upper grades of the District Schools (white); and sixty, in the four lower grades. In the suburban schools, and in nearly all of the schools for colored children, the required number to each teacher is forty.

a. The Teachers upon promotion shall receive the grade of salary next higher than that to which they were entitled before promotion.

b. Teachers who teach half day at separate schools to receive $50.00 per annum extra, provided the schools are one mile or more apart.

CLASSIFICATION OF SCHOOLS.

As shown in the above schedule of salaries, by rank, the schools are classified as first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, and seventh class. The class to which a school belongs depends entirely upon the number of teachers employed in the school and not upon the grade of pupils taught in the school. The number of teachers in a school depends upon the number of pupils, the quota to each teacher being fixed by rule as shown on a preceding page.

A school that has the required quota of pupils and eighteen or more assistant teachers, ranks as first-class.

A school that has the required quota of pupils and from thirteen to seventeen assistant teachers, ranks as second-class.

The required quota of pupils and from ten to twelve assistant teachers, entitles the school to the rank of third-class.

A school entitled to eight or nine assistants ranks as fourth-class ; to five, six or seven assistants, as fifth-class ; to four or five teachers (including the principal), as sixth-class ; to less than four teachers, as seventh-class.

It thus appears that the salary of the principal of a school depends upon the number of teachers to which the school is entitled.

All assistant teachers in the district schools begin with the rank of third assistant. Proficiency entitles the teacher to promotion to higher rank, and when vacancies occur in the higher ranks teachers from the next lower rank are promoted to these vacancies. The number of "ranking" teachers, that is, second, first, and head assistants, to which a school is entitled, depends upon the class of the school, and is fixed by rule.

SUPPLY OF TEACHERS.

At present our Normal School graduates a sufficient number of pupils to fill all vacancies in the district schools. These Normal graduates are also High School graduates, High School graduation being the required qualification for entering the Normal School.

TEACHERS FOR THE KINDERGARTEN.

Persons who wish to become teachers in the kindergartens are required, first, to pass a satisfactory examination in the common English branches. They are then admitted to the kindergartens as "volunteer" assistants, without pay for their services, where they are required to learn the practical work of the kindergarten. Instruction in the theory of the method is given to these volunteers by competent instructors. Applicants for the position of volunteer assistant in the kindergarten must be at least seventeen years of age.

HIGH AND NORMAL SCHOOLS.

The number of pupils admitted to the Junior year of the High School during the school year ending in June, 1890, was 580.

At the beginning of the scholastic year 1886-87, the High and Normal Schools were placed under one management, with the intention of arranging a Normal Course beginning, at least, in the second year of the High School and extending one year beyond the completion of that course. Though this plan has not been carried into effect, we have practically reached a period when the Normal School is simply a continuation of the High School course, for a special purpose ; for all pupils now admitted to the Normal are High School graduates ; and the general course in the Normal School, which extends through two and one-half years and includes both culture studies and professional training, has virtually been abandoned.

The course now pursued in the Normal is special and purely professional, and is designed to give some needed professional knowledge and training to those who desire to engage as teachers. This course extends through one and one-half years, and includes some experience in the school for observation, where the Normal pupils take charge of classes under the direction of experienced teachers.

As originally designed when the consolidation of these schools was made, the Normal course was to begin in the second year of the High School and continue to the end of the High School course. After completing this course, practical experience was to be gained by "substituting" in various schools during one year, when special diplomas would be given to those who proved successful.

It is hoped that this plan may be effected in the near future.

I propose to repeat here much that I have previously stated in my reports and on various occasions, relating to the value of the High School to a community, and to the Normal School as a necessity.

Objections have frequently been raised against the free High School on the ground that secondary education is not necessary for the success of the individual or for the good of the community, and therefore should not be given at public expense.

These objectors agree, however, that the intelligence of the people is essential to the stability of our form of government ; but they hold that the elementary school provides a sufficient means for securing the needed intelligence.

It must be remembered that the elementary school can furnish only the mere rudiments of an education, the bare "tools," as it were, of intelligence, with but very limited training in the use of these tools. The limited time for work and the lack of capacity in pupils so young, do not afford the opportunities for giving a sufficient training in the use of these tools in the higher and more adequate activities of thought ; therefore the degree of intelligence secured through this source is exceedingly limited, and necessarily so.

Now, if it be true that, at least, this limited intelligence is necessary for the good of our institutions, is it not logical to assume that greater intelligence would be productive of greater good, and that the highest intelligence would be productive of the highest good, and therefore is essential.

"The free High School is an institution peculiarly American." The spirit that gave birth to our form of government has placed this defense of our free institutions in every town and in every city in this fair land, and that, too, for a purpose—that of providing for the people a sure means for securing for themselves higher intelligence.

"The elementary schools provide only for the rudiments of an education, and at a time when the individual is controlled mostly by feeling and caprice, and when only the lowest forms of thought are active. But man must be governed by reason and must learn to govern himself. His happiness depends upon his industry and upon the principles that control his action ; hence, there must be a higher education that deals with the individual during that period in which the higher forms of reason begin to dawn upon his consciousness, and when he is capable of being controlled by the higher sentiments and motives—the period in which the right way of thinking can be formed and fixed for life.”

“He who possesses a knowledge of such facts relating to material things as are necessary for his success in life, has learned self-control, recognizes the rights of others, knows the methods of thought that enable him to fathom the depths of social and political interests, and above all has sympathy for his fellowman, cannot be false to that form of government and to those social conditions that have the highest principles as their ground.”

Such results are expected of the High School. Does it accomplish this purpose? We believe it does.

“Mathematics, the sciences, language, literature and history, furnish the information necessary for the highest general success in life, and provide the means for securing the best intellectual and moral culture. By studying mathematics the individual gains possession of facts essential to success in practical life. In studying the natural sciences he discovers the laws of nature and learns to control those forces that enable him to improve his condition and to free himself in a measure from the bonds of his physical necessities. In literature he gets the best thoughts of the wisest and best men. His sympathy and his love for humanity, his desire for spiritual truth and his admiration for the noble in character, are stimulated to action and given form and permanence. It is in this department of study that he is led to the true interpretation of the motives for individual deeds and social movements. He reaches beyond the narrow limits of his own experience and grasps the highest principles that incite men to action.” Such is the result of High School instruction. Does experience confirm this assertion? Yes, it does.

In 1878, the National Teachers' Association appointed a committee to investigate the characters and to learn of the successes of the graduates of the High Schools of this country, and their reports from time to time have fully substantiated this assertion of the high character of the teachings and influences of these schools.

If the High School served no other purpose than to stimulate pupils in the elementary schools to greater effort, and to fill many with the desire to complete the elementary course for the honor of being admitted to a higher school, it would more than return to the community all that it costs, for in this way alone it adds to the community a goodly proportion of individuals who have received a stimulus for better and nobler purposes. It is intelligence that gives values to material things. Property does not depend alone upon the numerical strength of the community. It is also a fact that a good High School or institution for higher education, located in the midst of any community, is of great benefit to that community from a monied standpoint, because it makes the place in which it is located more desirable for the better elements of society.

But there is another direction in which the High School has become essential to our school system, namely, as a school for the education of those who become teachers.

The time was when the notion was quite current, that any one can teach children. That day has passed. Intelligent people recognize the fact that only the best educated and most cultured should have charge of the education of young children. One illustration in this connection will suffice. Several years ago the then secretary of the London Board of Public Education visited some of our schools. During his visit he asked every teacher of the lowest primary grade whom he met, what she did to prevent truancy. The reply invariably was "I have no truancy, sir." At the close of his visit the secretary said to me, "I do not understand this. These ladies tell me they have no truancy. I cannot believe they are trying to deceive me, for they are educated and cultured ladies, fit to grace any position." Your last statement, I replied, is the answer to your query. In your schools you employ young girls, pupils in the higher grades, to teach many of your primary pupils. They have neither the education nor the culture necessary to enable them to interest, influence and control the children, and therefore truancy is a serious problem in your primary schools, while with us it is a thing almost entirely unknown.

Those who oppose the High School on the ground of cost, forget that the High School is as great a necessity to the district school system as that system is itself a necessity.

If the public schools have a right to exist as a means for securing the general intelligence of the people, they certainly have the right to protect and preserve their ability to give intelligence to the masses, and this ability rests in the ability of the teachers. If the teachers were uncultured and poorly educated, and possessed but a low degree of intelligence, the schools could not carry out their supposed function.

To secure good schools we must secure good teachers, persons possessing much information, well disciplined minds, and habits of study and reflection, to secure a continuance of intellectual growth and a constantly increasing moral worth. The preservation to the system of an acceptable degree of excellence requires an intellectual and disciplinary qualification on the part of the teacher, equal at least to that provided for in the High School course, besides such professional training as time and necessity will allow in the Normal School.

The following report of the principal of the High and Normal Schools gives a full statistical exhibit of the condition of these schools for the year.

REPORT OF PRINCIPAL OF NORMAL AND HIGH SCHOOLS.

Mr. E. H. Long, Superintendent Public Schools.

SIR:—The tables submitted herewith contain the required information concerning enrollment and attendance in the Normal and High Schools for the scholastic year ending June, 1890.

Fifty-seven students were granted Normal School diplomas during the past year. A hundred and sixty-five pupils finished the High School course. The majority of the young ladies of the High School class entered the Normal School to prepare themselves for the work of teaching.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

F. LOUIS SOLDAN,

Principal.

EVENING SCHOOLS

The number of evening schools was increased this year by two polytechnic schools and two preparatory schools. The conditions for admission were the same as for the preceding year, and there was no change in the course of study. The enrollment was twenty-seven per cent. greater than for last year, and the attendance was a little over eleven per cent. greater.

In the statistical tables given below the preparatory departments have been kept separate from the polytechnic, for statistical purposes, though a polytechnic and a primary department, under the same name, in reality constituted but one school. Thus it will be seen that evening schools were opened in seven buildings.

The statistical results of the evening schools are given in the following tables :—

SCHOOL FOR DEAF MUTES.

The total enrollment in this school for the year was 31 pupils—15 boys and 16 girls. The average number belonging for the year was 22.

The attendance upon this school was much less this year than it has been for several preceding years. There has been a demand by the patrons of this school for a teacher of articulation. The failure to meet that demand is given as the cause for decreased patronage. That demand, however, has been met by the appointment of a teacher of articulation.

Mr. D. A. Simpson, who has had charge of this school since its first opening in 1879, was compelled, at the close of the year, on account of failing health, to take a leave of absence.

The Board has been fortunate in securing the services of Mr. J. H. Cloud, an experienced and excellent teacher of the deaf.

I append here a statement by Mr. Cloud, of the comparative merits of the different systems of teaching deaf mutes.

Mr. E. H. Long, Superintendent of Public Schools :

SIR:—In accordance with your suggestion, I submit herewith a report of the School for the Deaf, located in the Jefferson School building, on the north-west corner of ninth and Wash streets.

When I first took charge, in September, 1890, the school was entering upon the twelfth year of its existence. The total enrollment for the first three-quarters of the present term is twenty-nine, and the attendance is twenty-five.

The appointment of a special teacher of articulation, in February, enabled us to adopt the "Combined System" of instruction. The experience in a large majority of the best schools for the deaf has fully demonstrated that it is only by the practice of this system that the greatest advantages to the greatest number may be secured.

Articulation and speech reading are regarded as very important, and are taught where the measure of success seems likely to justify the labor expended. All of our pupils make a trial of articulation. But mental development and the acquisition of language are regarded as of still more importance. A high authority on deaf mute instruction truly says, that with the oral method it is possible to educate some, with the combined method any deaf child of average attendance, and to do much for even apparently hopeless cases. In schools where oral instruction alone is provided a large percentage of the pupils must derive but very little benefit. Teachers of the largest experience and broadest views unite in approving of a judicious use of the sign language in the education of the deaf.

A careful search for deaf children residing in the city has resulted in the finding of a number who are not attending any school. This is especially true in regard to the number of colored deaf children, and it is hoped that a branch of this department will be opened for them, in connection with one of the Colored Schools, at the beginning of the session next fall.

It sometimes happens that children are found whose parents know nothing of the existence of the school and, in some cases, two or three years of valuable school time belonging to the children have been lost. Still others have been found who did not know that the school was free, and a part of the City Public School System. Instances like the above, however, are becoming of rarer occurrence, but are frequent enough to justify the use of every means for calling the attention of parents and guardians of deaf children to this school.

It seems almost incredible, but is nevertheless true, that some parents are so indifferent to the future welfare of their deaf children, as to deny them the benefit of the excellent educational advantages provided for them by the city and by the state. A few such instances have already come under my personal observation in this city for which there appears to be no present remedy. If compulsory education of children in the full possession of all their faculties is beneficial and even necessary, it is certainly more so in the case of the deaf, who must always depend chiefly upon their ability to read and write in order to communicate with the world at large.

It is a matter of regret that the religion of parents or their fondness for some particular method of instruction should ever keep them from placing their deaf children in a public school established for their special benefit. When it is remembered that a large attendance at any school admits of a more perfect system of grading, thereby greatly facilitating the work of both pupils and teachers, that a greater number of regular and special teachers may be employed whose combined efforts make it possible to arrive at the highest educational results, that better accommodations and a larger and more varied assortment of school room aids may be obtained, and that the per capita cost for educating each pupil is reduced to a minimum, one is able to perceive some of its advantages which a largely attended and well conducted school for the deaf possesses over a small one with only a handful of pupils.

Yours respectfully,

JAMES H. CLOUD.

THE DISTRICT SCHOOLS.

On the first ten pages of this report, under the items "Buildings," "Teachers," and "Pupils," general statistics relating to the schools have been given. In the Appendix under "Tabular Statements for the Year 1889-'90," detailed statements for each school will be found if desired. Table VIII., in the Appendix, gives the enrollment and attendance of pupils in each kindergarten. The kindergartens take their names from the district schools with which they are connected. By comparing table VIII. with tables I. and VII., the size of each school of which a kindergarten forms a part, and also the grades of pupils taught in each of these schools, can be seen.

As stated in the introduction of this report, there are seventy-six kindergartens connected with our schools, and these are in reality as much a part of the district schools as is any one of the other grades of the elementary school course.

There seems to be a diversity of opinions as to the purpose of Froebel's method. The so-called, or rather the self-styled practical people have seized those representations of the method that can be known through the senses, and judge of it from this standpoint only. Some of these indorse the kindergarten as the beginning of a system of education that has for its sole object the cultivation of the hand and the eye—a sort of preliminary training for manual skill and industrial pursuits, intellectual and moral effects being purely incidental. This is a purely utilitarian view, and is held by those who are unconscious of any possible knowledge beyond that which can be gained through the senses. This is also a view from a purely materialistic standpoint, though doubtless many of the advocates of this limited notion of the purpose of the kindergarten may not be conscious of the tendency of such an interpretation.

But there is another class of persons who, while they accept this so-called practical view so far as to its direct influence in the preparation of the individual for industrial pursuits, hold that there is a far deeper significance to the method—a representation of all of the processes of thought and of the entire spiritual world—the world of institutional life—and of man's relation to God. This side is held to be as much a part of the child's life as is the material side of his being; and it should be impressed in the earliest childhood in ways that are directly in accordance with the child's nature, namely, through the symbolic.

Those who hold this view are charged by the practical people with being theoretical, visionary, unpractical.

This charge would, indeed, have some force if it were true that the most practical is that which contributes directly to making a living.

If it be true that the soul has no actuality; if it be true that the family is nothing real, that civil society is a myth, and that the State is but a dream of the imagination; then, and then only is it true that Froebel's method, as interpreted by himself, is visionary and unpractical. We believe this method to be the most practical of methods, for the truly practical should lead the individual towards the knowledge of the whole truth, that he may in the end be able to place himself into proper spiritual relations, as well as to be able to provide for physical necessities.

Everything becomes more intelligible when compared with something else of the same sort; we should compare methods, and to compare methods involves the necessity of knowing them. It has been said that he who knows but one language knows no language. A similar statement may be made with reference to methods in education, with even greater force, using the term method as ordinarily used, as the expression for some partial mode of procedure. He who knows but one method knows no method.

A sort of positivism pervades many of the educational schemes of the day—a feeling that the essential in education is only the acquiring of such facts as can be gained through the senses, and can be applied to the process of making a living. The greatest of all facts is lost to view, namely, the fact that positive knowledge includes facts of the soul, as well as those pertaining to the material world. The world within demands attention, as well as the world without.

There is, too, an unseen spiritual world (unseen by the faculties of sense), as well as a visible material world, and this unseen world is the world in which a human soul can rise to the realization of its highest ideal. In the material world, man is only an animal, in the spiritual, or institutional world, his highest nature is manifested.

Between these extremes lie many of the so-called educational methods of the day, but the true method must include both extremes and all that lies between. The true method cannot be materialistic, because, recognizing as it does the true spirituality of man, it recognizes the relation of the so-called positive side of his attainments to his actual being.

The kindergarten develops in the child a wonderful power of observation, and the inclination to notice and compare things around them ; it gives the elements of number, form and color and stimulates the inventive faculty of the child ; it trains the eye and disciplines the hand in directions essential for special skill and usefulness ; it initiates the child into the elementary forms of the arts and trades, and introduces to him social conditions and relations ; it secures muscular development, and physical grace, and exercises the mind in every form of of mental activity ; it impresses upon the child his own individuality, and leads him to feel his true relation to other individualities ; it impresses him with the dependence of things and persons, and teaches respect and reverence. The kindergarten cultivates the power of expression by making the child conscious of ideas and then leading him to express them in material forms or in language.

With those who have studied the aim and method of the kindergarten, there can be no doubt of its great value as a preparation for the work of the primary school.

If all primary teachers in our schools understood thoroughly the kindergarten theory and method, they would be able to recognize something more in the object of primary teaching than the mere accumulation of facts, namely, the true processes of thought and the order of the unfolding of the child's mind. Such knowledge would secure unity in the work that would be exceedingly beneficial.

There has been no special change during the year in the course of study for the district schools, except in the presentation of subjects for geographical study.

The biographical and historical course in connection with the geography course has been of much value to the pupils, and has awakened much interest in historical study.

The publisher of School and Home has, as far as possible, contributed to the interest of historical and biographical study, by using a portion of the columns of this valuable paper for historical sketches.

If there is any one direction in which we should put forth more effort, it is in the direction of securing on the part of our pupils, more general reading. The Board should encourage our efforts in this direction by making an annual appropriation of a sufficient amount to support a free circulating library for the district schools. Various plans have been devised for carrying into effect such a scheme. There is no doubt as to the possibility of effectively executing a scheme for the free distribution of books to the various schools, if a suitable fund for this purpose is once established.

While drawing has continued to receive its full share of interest and attention, much of the value of the work as an educational means is lost to us, because of our inability to fully carry out the making of forms. For this purpose plastic material is needed, in addition to other material that is used.

The condition of drawing in our schools and also the needs of this department are fully set forth in the following report of the Supervisor of Drawing :

Mr. E. H. Long, Superintendent Public Schools :—

SIR :—In compliance with your request I submit the following report :—

The progress made in the department of drawing during the past year has been very satisfactory. The great majority of the teachers have manifested an enthusiasm in the work and aroused an interest on the part of the pupils that is very encouraging, although many of them worked at a disadvantage in not having the proper models. The work has been greatly aided by the support of principals in doing what they could to supply their schools with material (scissors, models, etc.). Many were able to supply material quite liberally, while others, although willing, felt themselves restricted by the rules of the Board not allowing collections to be taken from the pupils except for the prescribed text books. In some cases the principals in their anxiety to forward the work, and appreciating its usefulness, supplied their schools with material at their own expense. They realized that the work without the models was theoretical rather than objective, and that drawing would be of little practical use without the objects from which to study. Our work should be true "form study."

Great interest, in the minds of the children, has been added to the work this year, since the introduction of the Complete Course series, which requires the child to make most of the models from which he draws. These models are made of card-board, and answer for all grades.

Those made by pupils in any one grade are not only used by them, but by pupils of other grades also. They answer every purpose for the time for which they are required, being replaced by a new set every year.

Some of the models cannot be made by the children. If schools were allowed to make collections to furnish these models to the children in the same way that collections have been made for scissors this year, our work would be truly "form study and drawing."

The making of the models gives the pupils something to do and adds new interest to the study.

The child is led to first study the object until thoroughly familiar with its appearance, outlines and construction without any special attention to drawing, which is only a means of expressing the form knowledge thus acquired. At the same time attention is given to correct position, and practice to secure freedom of movement, proper character of line, etc., but all is subservient to the dominant idea of the acquisition of form knowledge and habits of critical observation, by which the child learns to see and appreciate beauty of form and arrangement. The expression of these ideas on paper by drawing naturally follows.

The children then proceed to the construction of similar models and learn to observe their general characteristics as well as their resemblances and differences, to recognize the forms of which they are the types, the proportions which give beauty of form, and, incidentally, to give expression to these ideas in representation.

It is in this training of the mind to observe, and of the hand to give expression that many of the incidental benefits derived by other studies from drawing are found. That form study does have a beneficial influence on other studies is everywhere conceded. The old idea that drawing should be introduced into the public schools simply for its industrial value, although of great importance, has proved to be too narrow, and it was soon found that a powerful factor in the general training of the mind had been left out. As Dr. Arnold Dodel has observed, "Whoever learns to draw learns to observe, to recognize, to discriminate, to see where others perceive nothing and learn nothing. Such a one received a mental training, a breadth and acuteness, which is equipment toward a finished organism."

In the later years the study of the appearance of objects under different circumstances of position and distance, involving perspective, is taken up, and the subject continued in the three departments of Construction, Representation and Decoration.

There is, in this complete course, a thoroughly well arranged system of teaching color, something that has been wholly neglected heretofore in our public schools throughout the country, but now the necessity of its adoption into our school system is being generally acknowledged, and measures are being taken everywhere to give it the prominence which it deserves.

The value of Color Education in a wide range of industrial occupations is no longer disputed. In many of them it is essential to success. Hence it is not merely a pastime or an ornamental study, but an essential part of a thorough industrial education, although its influence in leading to a full appreciation of the beautiful in Nature and Art, and the cultivation of good taste in every-day life should not be overlooked.

There is reason to believe that many cases of color blindness are due solely to a lack of education of the color sense, and this course of instruction aims to develop this sense.

The attraction which a bright colored object has for every young child shows us that the color sense exists, and only needs the proper education to develop it, and it is certain that this sense is capable of great cultivation. Prof. Aborn, of Cleveland, Ohio, has well said, "There is no evidence to justify the assumption that genius is ever anything but an educational product in which the line of least resistance has been exceptionally clear and constant in one direction," and that "the educational aim can only be to learn how and what can be done that other minds may possess similar capability."

The study of color in this course begins with the Solar Spectrum taken as a unit, from which it proceeds to the intermediate colors through all their tints and shades, by means of colored tablets, papers, and other material especially prepared for this use.

Although this course has been adopted in our schools no provision has, as yet, been made for supplying the material for teaching color.

Some of the schools have made a practical test of this study this year by supplying the necessary material from pic-nic or other reserve funds, with the most satisfactory results.

The drawing in the first year of the High School is obligatory, and includes Geometrical Problems, Design, Application of Color in design, Perspective, and Outline Drawing from objects and casts.

In the second year, drawing, being elective and purely instrumental, is not studied by more than five per cent. of the pupils, and the large majority of these are boys.

In the third and fourth years it is an extra study, that is, if a pupil happens to have a study hour between two recitations and chooses to devote that time to drawing and to do the other studying at home, he has that privilege. The time appointed for drawing is Tuesday and Wednesday mornings, from nine to twelve, and unless the study hour of a pupil comes at that time, he has no opportunity to pursue the study.

It will be seen at once how poorly prepared are the pupils who enter the Normal School, where it is supposed that they are only taught methods of teaching all subjects.

Although the drawing of this school continues with the same excellence that has characterized it all along, it is impossible for any one not acquainted with the circumstances to realize how such results are accomplished, and how much work is necessarily done by the teacher outside of school hours.

In addition to leading the students over the entire work to be done in the district schools, grade after grade, it is necessary for them to become familiar with the work which should be taught in the High School, but which, under the existing circumstances, cannot be.

If it be true, as is claimed, that the majority of pupils attend school but four years, the child cannot be able to make his or her living by means of the education acquired in that time. It is barely enough to enable him to keep informed on passing events. One of the most important factors in his education has been left out, that of fitting him for earning his living.

Ruskin says, "Let the youth once learn to take a straight shaving off a plank, or draw a fine curve without faltering, or lay a brick level in its mortar, and he has learned a multitude of other matters which no lips of man could ever teach him."

It is just these useful lessons which it is the aim of our "form study and drawing" to teach, lessons whose usefulness is far-reaching, in that they develop the powers of accurate observation and train the hand to delicate obedience.

Respectfully submitted,

MATILDA E. RILEY.

There is probably no one direction in which more good can be done by departing from the generally prescribed means for educating the people, than by establishing in certain localities or in certain schools, classes in which sewing and cooking shall be taught.

There is no doubt as to the elevating and refining influences that can be secured through these means with a certain class of the population of our great cities. It requires no very extensive investigation of the condition of certain portions of the population of the city, to determine the necessity for such measures. Sewing and cooking schools in connection with free public schools, are no longer an experiment, for they have been successfully established in many of the cities of this country.

In Europe this department of education has long since become a settled fact.

The Board should give some attention to this matter at an early day.

In conclusion, I desire to express my thanks to the Board for their earnest support, and for their effort to make the schools as efficient as possible.

Respectfully,

EDWARD H. LONG,
Superintendent.

THE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

REPORT OF THE PRESIDENT.

To the Honorable the Board of President and Directors of the St. Louis Public Schools:

GENTLEMEN :—What you said in your report of last year through your President to the people of St. Louis, in the interest of the Public Library, did much to encourage the hope that the day was near when a suitable building would be provided for this valuable collection. It raised the hope also that the time was not remote when St. Louis, like most other large cities of this country, should have a free library accessible to all its inhabitants.

It is most gratifying to the Board of Library Managers to be able to say that through your action the need for new and commodious library quarters is about to be met. Much time and thought have been given to this matter by the Librarian and committees responsible for this step; and it is believed that the new edifice when completed will be a credit to our city and a great joy and blessing to all among us who love books.

This removal to a new and suitable edifice, however, must be considered as but a preliminary step to a still more important measure, without which the library will come short of its true position and career. Nothing less than a library absolutely free to the people—as free as public education with which cause this institution is so closely identified—will satisfy the growing demand. It is within your power to co-operate towards this end.

Your President of last year, clearly recognizing the limitations under which the library suffered, saw that with a new building and facilities, and a consequently enlarged sphere of duties and opportunities, new expenses would be incurred. In its present condition, he said, "it is struggling along, barely existing upon the meagre allowance which the School Board is able to afford from the other pressing demands upon its limited income." And again: "It would be a reproach to the civilization of St. Louis, while the evidences of increasing wealth are apparent on every hand, if this institution with such magnified possibilities of usefulness, should be permitted to languish, or even continue to be a burden upon the limited funds provided by law for elementary education."

These are words of candor and of urgent importance. They suggest the alternative that is before you. Either (1) a larger appropriation must be made from the school funds for library purposes; or (2) we must seek to reorganize the library under the State laws providing for the establishment of public libraries, in which case it would derive its support from a special tax. I have no doubt that the latter measure is the true solution. While it would relieve the School Board of its present appropriation, it would furnish an income corresponding to the new and increasing needs; it would honor our city to make this noble institution free for all time.

There is much interesting reading in the Librarian's report; but I would call your attention here to one point only,—to the need of "delivery stations." This plan, which is fast going into operation in all large cities, which is already adopted with the most satisfactory results in several cities of a less population than 100,000, should not be longer delayed. It will be a mistake if this system is not fully organized when the new building is ready for use in 1892. It is more than a public convenience. It has been found that a delivery station, especially where the books are free, has done much to change, and make more quiet, the habits of a neighborhood; to turn the thoughts of a poor and rough class into new and better channels. Children learn to read books who never read books before; and the homes are thus rendered more orderly, intelligent and happy. We should do well to begin with a few stations for the reception and delivery of books, but probably as many as there are city wards will be found not too many ; and by an arrangement with well-disposed citizens, the expense would be small compared with the benefits to be gained.

The whole sum expended for the use of the library for the past year has been $18,792.94, of which $14,000 was received from the school funds. About 4,000 books were placed upon the shelves in that time, while some recent additions bring the whole number of volumes up to 76,130.

It only remains to speak of the harmonious and efficient work of those engaged in the library service. We are greatly indebted to the Librarian and his faithful assistants for their earnest interest and co-operation in all plans for the increased usefulness of the Library. Hereafter we expect the rooms to be open every day in the year. It is found upon trial that there are many who enjoy a holiday where they can have access to books, where they have uninterrupted hours of reading and study. Of my fellow members, those upon the committees of the Library, I would express my sense of the great value of their work.

Respectfully submitted,

JOHN C. LEARNED,

President of the Board of Managers.

*Of the 473 volumes worn out and condemned 42 were replaced by new copies.

A few facts contained in the above figures are especially worthy of note :—

- 1st. Nearly one-fourth of the year's additions were gifts.
- 2nd. Out of 3,882 volumes added to the regular library only 427 were novels, a majority of which were bought to replace copies worn out. It will be seen, therefore, that only 11 per cent. of the books added were novels. The average cost of these was less than one dollar, leaving 90 per cent. of the total expenditure for the purchase of other books. With such a record repeated from year to year it is evident that the public money is not spent for mere literary entertainment.

Among the more noteworthy additions of the year are—

Blanc. Masterpieces of Italian art. 1 v. folio.
 Brown. Musical instruments, 1 v. sq. 4°.
 Century Dictionary. 4 v. 4°.
 Champlin. Cyclop. of music and musicians, 3 v. imp. 8°.
 Dublin Univ. magazine. 71 vols.
 Farrow's Military encyclopædia, 3 v. imp. 8°.
 Gallery of famous men and women. 10 v. 100 por. India proof ed.
 Havard. L'art dans la maison, 1 v. imp. 8°. illus.
 Lylle's Euphues. ed. 1631.
 Racinet. Costume historique, 6 v. fo. 500 plates.
 Stedman's Library of American literature 10 v. roy 8°.
 Vermont's. American heraldica, 1 v. 4°. col'd plates.

Pursuing the policy of the last five or six years, back volumes of periodicals have been purchased whenever they could be bought at reasonable prices. During the year covered by this report 331 such volumes were secured; and a number of sets were thus completed.

EXCHANGES AND DONATIONS.

A complete list of the exchanges and donations for the year, numbering 864 volumes and 794 pamphlets, will be found in an appendix. The larger, or more noteworthy, gifts were from Chas. H. Turner, Miss Gantt, Mrs. L. Ludwig and Frederick Wislizenus, of this city; Rev. R. N. Cust, of London; Messrs. Houghton, Mifflin & Co., and Dr. Lambert Sauveur, of Boston; the United States Departments of State and the Interior, and the New York State Library.

Special mention should also be made of cash donations received from Messrs. John M. Gilkeson and E. W. Pattison, from the former for memberships given to deserving boys and girls, and from the latter for the purchase of books.

A valuable addition was made to our art treasures by the presentation of a medallion of Miss Louisa M. Alcott, executed by Ricketson. For this most acceptable and appropriate gift the Library is indebted to Mesdames John Green, R. J. Lackland, James Leete, Henry Eliot, Henry R. Whitmore, E. J. Glasgow, Jr., and Misses Annie Shands, M. E. Hoke, Lillian Brown and Minnie Bruere.

Citizens should remember that many books valueless to them may be useful in a public library, and that the public library is the proper depository of every book and pamphlet (including old directories) relating to the history of the city.

"Donation has been the source of the principal libraries which have ever or anywhere been founded. It is not easy to conceive that a benevolent and enlightened citizen can leave a more pleasing or lasting monument behind him than a donation of books to a public library, constituting a department on which his name might be inscribed as a benefactor, not only to his own times but to future ages."

Report of Select Committee of the House of Commons on Public Libraries, July, 1849.

BINDING.

The binder's book records 728 volumes bound for the first time at a cost of $626.60, an average of eighty-six cents per volume, and 1306 volumes rebound at a cost of $497.98, an average of thirty-eight cents per volume. The binder's bills were considerably less this year than last, and less than the average of former years. From year to year our books are used more carefully; and cases of wilful mutilation and defacement are now rare.

CIRCULATION.

Last year's report noted a gain of 12,138 and the year before 28,347. This year shows a further gain of 4,687, making a total increase of 45,172, or more than eighteen per cent. in the last three years. Full details will be found in the following tables:

Issue at Branch Library, 5322.

Of the Branch issue, 470 volumes were drawn from the main Library.

The Library and Reading-room were open 359 days.

The Home issue department was open 307 days.

The Library was closed July 4, October 10, November 28, December 25, January 1, February 22.

1612 notices were mailed to members from the issue department; 961 for books overdue, and 207 for memberships expired, 121 informing members of books reserved, and 323 calling attention to new books supposed to be of special interest to the persons addressed.

Eighty-one books were sent for and forty-one recovered. Sixty cents was spent for car fare, and fifty cents was collected in messenger fees. Books not recovered were in the hands of persons who had left the city or the neighborhood, and could not be found.

CHARACTER OF THE READING.—IMPROVEMENT.

Last year's report noted a decrease of one and one-half per cent. in the percentage of fiction issued for home use. The foregoing table of classified circulation shows a further decrease of the same amount. Thus by degrees the fiction percentage has fallen during the last eight years from sixty-two to fifty-two and one-half. At the same time the standard of the novels read has steadily advanced.

During the same period there has been a corresponding gain in the issue of reference books. The issue of cyclopædias and magazines in the reference department has increased from 2,643 to 14,147, or from 5.11 per cent. to 15.41 per cent.; while the number of volumes on social science used within the rooms has risen from 2,543 to 8,042, or from 4.92 per cent. to 11.2 per cent.

In March, 1888, a careful count was kept of the number of times each novel was drawn for home reading. A list of books reaching twenty-five issues and of authors scoring 100 issues during the month, compiled from this exhaustive record, was published in the annual report for that year. Frequent inquiries regarding the relative popularity of novels led me to keep a similar record during the months of January, February, March and April, 1890. For the sake of comparison the figures for 1888 are given again together with the thirty novels and the fourteen authors that stood highest during the four months of 1890.

From the foregoing figures it will be seen that the most popular novels are, as a rule, among the best novels. Out of the thirty that reached an aggregate issue of fifty times during the four months of 1890, only six or seven can be called trifling or trashy; while the first eight are all of the higher class of fiction. It must also be observed that the popularity of many of the inferior novels is temporary. Mr. Barpes of New York, and similar books are lost sight of; but Les Misérables, Scarlet Letter, Ivanhoe, David Copperfield, Vanity Fair and Uncle Tom's Cabin appear among the first twelve in 1890 as in 1888, and would be found in the front rank month after month and year after year.

A comparison of the two tables shows a decrease in the circulation of Ben Hur. Looking Backward does not appear at all in the list for March 1888, though it was published in January of that year. They have both passed their zenith of popularity, but are still in fair demand. It is curious to note that neither of these books attracted any special attention when first published. One or two copies of Ben Hur sufficed to supply the demand for the first four or five years. At the height of its popularity in 1887-88 forty copies were in constant circulation. Looking Backward did not wait so long for its flood-tide; but one or two copies were on the shelves for a year or more before there was any occasion for the purchase of a greater number. An English edition of The Story of an African Farm received very little wear the first three or four years.

If the count had been taken three years before, Ramona would have stood among the first ten; and in the winter of 1888 and '89 Robert Elsmere would have been a hopeful candidate for the same distinction. The Connecticut Yankee and Mr. Barnes of New York owe their prominent positions to their recent appearance. Each successive year has its passing favorite. Sometimes interest is revived in an old novel. If a count had been made this winter, it is probable that Lorna Doone would have stood among the first six. In the record of last winter it ranked seventy-fifth with an average monthly circulation of twelve. Now twelve copies are insufficient to supply the demand: the monthly issue probably reaches thirty and would be greater if more copies of the book were provided. The classics, the great works of fiction, like Les Misérables, Scarlet Letter, Vanity Fair, Ivanhoe, David Copperfield and Romola hold their place from year to year and from decade to decade. It may be worthy of note that Adam Bede averaged ten issues a month and Robert Elsmere eleven, and that The Talisman was drawn nineteen times in March.

It is interesting to compare the foregoing lists with similar tables published in the report of the Maimonides Library of New York for 1889. The list of single books drawn twenty or more times during the year 1889 includes 131 titles. The first thirty appear below, with the number of times each was drawn during the year.

In the above list Looking Backward stands in the eighteenth and Ben Hur in the thirtieth place, instead of first and second, as in ours. The different dates may account partially for the relative popularity of Looking Backward; while the exclusively Jewish constituency of the Maimonides Library may explain the respective positions of Daniel Deronda and Ben Hur. John Halifax was drawn forty and David Copperfield thirty-nine times, while Les Miserables stands near the foot of the list with only twenty-seven issues.

The authors are presented in three lists as "Best Reading," "Good Reading" and "Poor Reading." To the credit of the Maimonides members be it said that nineteen out of twenty-one authors whose works were issued more than 100 times during the year, are classed as "Best Reading," and the other two are certainly good reading.

POPULAR JUVENILES.

The eight books most popular among our young folks during March and April, including all that reached a total of thirty issues in the two months, were the following :—

	March.	April.	Total.
Little women.....	47	13	60
Tom Sawyer.....	26	29	55
Old fashioned girl.....	25	22	47

Little Lord Fauntleroy.....	24	18	42
Rose in bloom.....	20	21	41
Story of a bad boy.....	21	13	34

Of these eight books five are by Miss Alcott, who may fairly be adjudged the most popular writer of books for the young. It will be seen, however, from the following table that in the aggregate she is overborne through sheer force of numbers by Adams, Fosdick and Henty. "Oliver Optic," with his sixty-five different books, shows the greatest number of issues; but in the average issue of each book Miss Alcott leads, with Ellis second and "Castlemon" third.

In the report of the New York Free Circulating Library for the year ending October 31, 1889, Miss Ellen M. Coe, Chief Librarian, devotes eight pages to an exhibit of the relative popularity of the leading books in the various classes, Fiction, Juveniles, History, Fine Arts, Social Science, etc.

Fiction, of course, has a larger total circulation than any other class. "It must be understood, however," says Miss Coe, "that many individual books not of fiction have been issued a greater number of times than any work of fiction, but they are placed farther down the list, because the whole circulation of the class in which they belong is less than that of fiction. A list of books actually read most frequently would be headed by these: Coffin, Boys of '76, and Boys of '61; Custer, Boots and Saddles; Blaikie, How to Get Strong and How to Stay so; Boy's Handy Book, and Book of Sports; Shakespeare, Plays; Clemens (Mark Twain), Innocents Abroad; Lives of Washington, Lincoln, and other Americans; Darwin, Voyage of the Beagle; Brassey, Round the World in the Yacht Sunbeam; Bookkeeping and Phonography."

Perhaps the most interesting fact brought out by these statistics is that there is a marked tendency upward in the grade of books drawn from year to year. When a branch is opened in a district not hitherto so blessed, the greatest demand is for the inferior novels. In a few years a marked improvement is perceived.

"Such authors as Mary J. Holmes, Douglas, Wilson, etc., who still take the lead in the newer libraries, have given place to Dickens, Scott, Dumas. The two books of the year are Wallace, 'Ben Hur,' and Ward, Robert Elsmere.' Bellamy's 'Looking Backward,' was not purchased in duplicate early enough to stand high in the list, but is one of the most popular now."

The same efforts to promote better taste in reading have produced similar results in the St. Louis Public Library and elsewhere.

Miss Coe further observes that "Americans of foreign birth or parentage are reading the best, or at least best known, books in American literature; and American history, biography, and miscellany are taking the lead. It is certain that Germans read better books than Americans, and boys than girls."

Observations elsewhere corroborate the conclusions deduced from the statistics of the New York Free Circulating Library ; that new readers begin with the lighter forms of fiction and that the tendency is constantly upward. When the membership fee of one dollar was done away with, and the library of Springfield, Massachusetts, was made free, the circulation was more than trebled the first year, and there was an immediate increase in the percentage of fiction. The same result in both particulars would follow the opening of this library free to all ; but after the education of the great mass of new readers was fairly begun, the grade of books drawn would gradually rise. This much, at least, can be said for the public library, that the poorest books it supplies are better than no books at all, that they mark an advance for those that draw them, and that they lead to better things.

PERIODICALS.

The number of periodicals and newspapers in the reading-room remains nearly the same as last year, and may be given in round numbers as 150 periodicals and 100 newspapers.

It is difficult to classify magazines and periodicals with any exactness ; but the following list showing the issue of the more popular publications indicates in some measure the character of the reading done in the reading-room.

	Issue for Year Ending June, 1889.	Issue for Year Ending June, 1890.		Issue for Year Ending June, 1889.	Issue for Year Ending June, 1890.

8. Youth's Companion	1,008	1,519	16. Revue des deux Mondes.	554	439

The number of periodicals drawn in the reading-room has more than doubled in the last eleven years, increasing from 46,436 in 1878, to 96,831 in 1889.

THE LIBRARY AND THE INTELLECTUAL LIFE OF ST. LOUIS.

Never before have such constant, numerous and varied demands been made upon the Library by students and serious readers as during this winter. With an increased amount of individual investigation, various clubs and classes have grown in number, size, and activity. One under Miss Mary E. Burt, of Chicago, has been engaged in the study of the world's literature : another under Mr. Denton J. Snider, has devoted itself to the Odyssey: Rev. J. C. Learned has led a large Dante class : the "Novel Club" has continued to flourish ; and the "Wednesday Club," under the presidency of Mrs. E. C. Sterling, is now bringing to a successful conclusion the most comprehensive and stimulating course of the season. To this list might be added the "Reform Club" and many others.

In the Wednesday Club, eight meetings, from October 15, to January 7th inclusive, were given to literature, embracing a study of the Lake Poets and contemporary essayists and allied topics. Landscape painting occupied the next two meetings ; and the remaining six are devoted to sociological subjects. This last portion of the programme is of such special interest, and illustrates so well the line of thought and investigation pursued by yearly increasing numbers who look to this Library for aid, that it is given in full.

THE NOVEL CLUB.

The "Novel Club," a branch of the Eliot Society of the Church of the Messiah, has repeated the successes of the three previous seasons. The attendance has been large, the essays excellent and the discussions animated and profitable. The programme illustrates how the novel of to-day serves for the presentation and discussion of sociological and psychological problems. The aim of the course, with the complete programme, is given below :

"The class will take up such phases of human nature and passions, in different environments, as are prominently portrayed in fiction ; the object being a practical understanding of the relation this human nature bears to the problems of modern life. Under each book will be given the characters to be especially considered, and also the individual traits they are to stand for in the discussion."

PROGRESS.—THE NEW BUILDING.

As has been mentioned in previous reports, the first books purchased are those recommended by users of the Library. When these are received, notices are immediately sent to the persons recommending them. For years it has been the custom to notify members of the addition of books presumed to be of special interest to them. This year, for the first time, a record was kept of these notices, which reached a total of 323. It is hardly necessary to add, that they were received in an appreciative spirit.

Through the efforts of State Senator Espenschied, a law was passed at this session of the Legislature for the protection of library property. Though the original bill was greatly changed and made less effective by amendments, the law is better than nothing, and may lead to the passage of a thorough measure by the next General Assembly.

The great event in this year's history is the decision of the School Board to provide new quarters for the Library. Plans have been adopted for a seven-story fire-proof building, of which the Library is to occupy the sixth and seventh stories. The sixth floor will contain the delivery and stack rooms and two rooms for special departments, the Teachers' and the Technological department. On the seventh floor will be the reading-room, reference and cataloguing rooms, a room for bound newspapers and government documents, the Directors' room and Librarian's office.

It is expected that the building will be ready for occupancy by September, 1892. Then the treasures that have been gathered here the last fifteen years will be properly displayed and made accessible ; and our people can realize that in this collection of books St. Louis has the largest and best library west of the Mississippi. But this distinction cannot long be retained, unless our citizens take more pride in the institution and contribute more liberally to its support than they have done hitherto. It will soon be outstripped by a library whose years do not equal our lustra.

DELIVERY STATIONS.

The new building being assured, the next step that should be taken is the establishment of delivery stations. There should be in different quarters of the city, a dozen or more places where books may be exchanged daily, or at least tri-weekly. This will be a general convenience, and will doubtless bring considerable accessions to our membership. The plan has proved eminently satisfactory in other cities and can be carried out with no great expense.

This suggests an excellent opportunity for private philanthropy. The most appropriate location for these stations would be reading-rooms, whether free or conducted by various societies for the benefit of their respective members. A dozen free reading-rooms distributed throughout the city would have a direct effect in drawing boys and young men from saloons and street corners, and thus checking vice and disorder. Their usefulness would be increased by making them delivery stations and thus bringing the library to the homes of the people.

THE FREE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

Last year I devoted considerable space (nearly half of my report) to setting forth the advantages conferred upon a community by a Free Public Library. The backwardness of St. Louis, compared with other cities far inferior in wealth and population, was shown, with the incalculable benefits that would accrue to the city by making this Library free and providing it with an ample support. Instead of having 6,000 names on our membership list, we should have 20,000 or 30,000. The latter number would be less than seven per cent. of the inhabitants. The Boston Public Library has 70,000 names on its rolls, fifteen per cent. of the entire population, which means a library ticket in almost every household.

Whatever variance of opinion there may be on the subject of educating the children of the community at public expense beyond the "three R's," there can be no valid objection to providing them with facilities for educating themselves. This can be done through free public libraries ; and the trifling expense is made up to the community ten times over in the increased productiveness of its citizens, not to mention other and higher considerations.

In illustration of the value of a good library to the material prosperity of a city, I quote the following from a report of the Cincinnati Public Library.

"It is seldom that we can measure in dollars and cents the usefulness of an institution whose benefits silently permeate the whole community ; but occasionally an illustration presents itself. I am authorized by Judge M. W. Oliver & E. W. Kittredge, Esq., to state that the information derived from three volumes in the library, which could not have been obtained elsewhere at the time, saved the people of Cincinnati, in the contract with the gas company, at least $33,500 annually for the next ten years.

"This one item is alone more than one-half the annual cost of the library, and is nearly equal to the amount paid by the Board of Education from the general educational fund for library purposes."

In his paper on "The Library in its relations to persons engaged in industrial pursuits," read at the St. Louis Conference of the American Library Association, Mr. Samuel S. Green, Librarian of the Worcester Public Library, presented a number of similar testimonials from prominent manufacturers of that city. One of the briefest must serve as a sample.

"Hundreds of our employes make very free use of the library, gaining therefrom much of good to themselves, and in some special cases, obtaining from it information of great value to us in our business."

When our contemplated Technological Department shall be well supplied with the best books on manufactures and the mechanic arts, and made accessible to every mechanic and apprentice in the city, there can be no doubt that it will call forth expressions of appreciation and approval equally emphatic. Meanwhile, without any special endowment, this department is furnishing valuable aid to our mechanics. Some idea of the demand for such information and need of a better supply, may be gathered from the issue of the Scientific American over 3,500 times and the Electrical World 768 times during the year, and from the fact that the latest books on electricity are as eagerly called for as the latest novels.

Valuable technological works are constantly asked for which cannot be purchased. This is because the book fund is too small and not, as is sometimes supposed, because it is largely spent on novels. Attention has already been called to the fact that novels cost only ten per cent. of the money expended for books during the year. The trouble is that $5,000 is not sufficient to cover the whole field of knowledge. That amount or more should be spent for works on industrial and fine arts alone. With these two expensive departments thus provided for, the present fund would do fairly well for the rest of the collection.

SIR JOHN LUBBOCK ON FREE LIBRARIES.

Last year in presiding over a meeting called to support a proposal for the establishment of a free library, Sir John Lubbock said that the tax of a penny in the pound for a library would not increase the rate at all.

"If we diminished crime and increased thrift we lowered the poor rate and the police rate, and it was much more satisfactory to spend money on the schools and books than on the prison and the union. Sir John said he had been looking for statistics as to those who had been committed to prison to see how many were educated. According to the latest returns on which he could lay his hands there were 157,000, and out of the whole number only 5,000 could read and write well, the other 152,000 being uneducated. He doubted very much, therefore, whether free libraries would cost tax-payers anything, whether they would not save more than the penny rate."

It was shortly after the St. Louis meeting of the American Library Association that the New York Times paid the following editorial tribute to the public library and the function of the librarian:

"The growth of the office of librarian in this country has been unprecedented; and the recent session of the American librarians at St. Louis has developed the fact that no intellectual interest is more rapidly advancing than that of supplying the American people with printed matter. The newspaper is universal, and thousands of people never go beyond it; but wherever the public schools discharge their duty to the population, they hand the pupil over to the library for the completion of his education. It is here that the function of the librarian begins, and such is the interest in the formation of libraries throughout the country that the only occupation where the supply is not equal to the demand to-day, is that of properly educated librarians. From what has here been said, it will be seen that the future of the public library in America has hardly yet been entered upon. The willingness exists almost everywhere to endow a public library; it is a popular way of doing good."

The Providence Journal closes an article on Public Libraries of the United States with this summary of the function of a free library:

"A free library is an extension of the public school system, and through its means one may pursue an elective course of study at will and through life. Carlyle thought that the chief purpose of a university is to give an access to books; and if this is true the greatest advantage of the public school system is lost where no facilities for wise and extended reading are offered in connection with it. If the influence of books upon youthful minds were clearly understood, the public library would be only second to that of the church and the school-house in the affections of the people. Society suffers in multitudinous ways from not placing the thoughts which inspire and energize within the reach of all who are naturally fitted to appreciate them. Scores of such persons exist in every community. If they are not mute, inglorious Miltons, they are dwarfed in intellect and undeveloped in imagination because their early years lacked the stimulus which the library alone could have given."

A Boston minister, in an autobiographical sketch just published in the Library Journal, pays a most emphatic tribute to the value of the public library, and incidentally corroborates the statement I have made that the reader's path, from his first entrance at the library door, is upward.

The whole sketch is very readable, showing the successive steps by which a bootblack became a minister, and how, through access to a free library, boys who have to earn their own bread may acquire an education that will make them the intellectual superiors of many college graduates. The first and last paragraph, with a sentence or two between, will serve to illustrate the tenor of the article.

"I am now a minister ; yet I have always had great sympathy for Jean Jacques Rousseau. He began life in a very humble sphere : I, when a boy, was a bootblack. Rousseau's early reading was chiefly romances. Mrs. E. D. E. N. Southworth was my favorite author while I was still at a very tender age. And lastly—for in this case one does not like to press the parallel—Rousseau wrote his own life ; and here am I giving you a small slice of my autobiography.

"We often hear of 'epoch-making books;' but many a book which even the humblest reviewer has never thought of calling 'epoch-making' has marked an epoch indeed in the life of some reader. The very Library Catalogue did so for me.

"The Public School finds a eulogist in every candidate for popular favor. I, too, could speak well of the public school. But when I am asked how I obtained my start in life, I shall always answer, 'Through a Public Library.' "

Thanking you for the wise direction, the invaluable counsel and the cordial support which have made my duties comparatively light and wholly pleasurable, and bespeaking from the community the thanks due to your honorable body for your able and disinterested service, I have the honor to be Very respectfully,

F. M. CRUNDEN,

March 26th, 1891.

REPORT OF THE EXAMINING COMMITTEE.

Mr. Fielding Mansfield, Chairman, presented the following report which was received and filed, and referred to the Ways and Means Committee and Teachers Committee in conjunction with the Attorney :

ST. LOUIS, November 18th, 1890.

To the Board of President and Directors of the St. Louis Public Schools :

GENTLEMEN :—The Committee appointed by your President on September 9th, 1890, under the provisions of Section 2 of Rule 8, to examine the receipts and expenditures of the Secretary and Treasurer, Bailiff and Supply Agent, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1890, respectfully submit the following report :

Two vouchers, Nos. 14,066 and 14,098, of the preceding fiscal year left over and paid in July, 1889, were examined, compared with the bills thereto attached, and found correct. Fifteen hundred and twenty-eight (1,528) vouchers, beginning with number 14,134 and ending with number 15,661, were examined, compared with the bills thereto attached, and all were found correct.

Twelve of these vouchers, Nos. 15,269, 15,454, 15,497, 15,558, 15,579, 15,580, 15,587, 15,605, 15,608, 15,628, 15,632, and 15,637, were held over to be paid in the succeeding fiscal year.

The receipts and expenditures, as indicated by the vouchers authorized by the Board for the year ending June 30th, 1890, have been correctly entered in the Day-book and in the Ledger. Each item was checked, the additions were verified, and the Ledger balances are correctly stated below.

The indicated cash balances in the Treasury were verified by comparison with the balances to the credit of your Board in the German Savings Institution on June 30th, 1890. From the attached certificate, marked "Exhibit A," of the Cashier of the German Savings Institution, it appears that on July 1st, 1890, said bank had on deposit with the Chemical National Bank in New York, bonds of the City of St. Louis to the value of five hundred thousand dollars ($500,000), as security for the funds of the Board deposited in bank at that date. By the annual settlement of the City Collector with the Comptroller of the City of St. Louis, it appears that the collection of taxes from all the sources due the Board during the year ending June 30th, 1890, was $923,057.83, which agrees with the amount deposited in bank.

The following bonds are deposited in the vault of the Safe Deposit Company in a box, the two keys of which are now held respectively by your President, Mr. Chas. F. Miller, and your Secretary, Mr. James Y. Player:

Twenty-two 6 per cent. Missouri State bonds—face value.....	$ 22,000 00
Four U. S. 4 per cent. bonds—face value.....	400 00
Milton H. Wash, late Secretary and Treasurer.....	50,000 00
Leo Rassieur, late Attorney.....	10,000 00

H. Clay Sexton, Bailiff.....	10,000 00
Henry Zeigenheim, City Collector.....	200,000 00
Insurance Policies on Polytechnic Building for.....	50,000 00

The bills receivable, face value $35,258.16, in possession of your Secretary and Treasurer, were examined and compared with the Ledger entries, which are correct. The leases, also in possession of your Secretary and Treasurer, were compared with the rent rolls, which were found to be correct.

The books and accounts of the Secretary and Treasurer, as before stated, are absolutely accurate as to all the entries for cash receipts and expenditures. The system of keeping accounts heretofore used by the officers of your Board was crude and unintelligible. The duplication of accounts and repetition of figures resulted in useless labor to the book-keeper, thereby increasing the possibilities for mistakes. At the same time it afforded ample opportunity for fraudulent entries by dishonest officers. Fortunately the officers of your Board have been men whose characters were above reproach. Your auditor, Mr. Hammerstein, has concluded to adopt a new system of keeping the accounts of your Board, which meets the approval of this committee, because the new system is simple, practical and in full accord with systems of keeping accounts used by commercial houses.

The Supply Agent's accounts, as stated below, were found to be correct :

Dr.		Cr.
Books on hand July 1st, 1889..	$10,447 13	Cash received from principals for books sold during the year	$34,361 11
Books purchased during year.	36,109 57	Books stamped and delivered to schools for indigent pu- pils during the year.....	4,672 75
		Books on hand at department for sale as per inventory....	7,522 84
Total	$46,556 70	Total	$46,556 70

The Bailiff's accounts, as stated below, were found to be correct :

Dr.		Cr.
Uncollected rent bills on hand July 1st, 1889, certified by the Secretary.....	$3,628 68	Cash collected during year and paid into Treasury.....	$57,086 96
Rent bills for collection de- livered to the Bailiff, during the year ending June 30th. 1890.....	59,593 29	Balance of uncollected rent bills in hands of Bailiff July 1, 1890.....	6,135 01
Total	$63,221 97	Total	$63,221 97

The Bailiff is charged with a balance of uncollected special tax bills on June 30, 1890, amounting to $223.36.

The attention of the Board is hereby directed to the amount of fines collected and paid into the Treasury during the following fiscal years ending each on June 30th :

1882, Amount received.....	$1,778 00
1883, " "	2,047 00
1889, " "	578 00
1890, " "	499 50

If there has been no change in the law, this statement showing such great decrease in the annual receipts for fines, indicates that the morals of the people of St. Louis have improved, or that the full amount collected for fines has not been paid into the Treasury, or that the fines have been remitted to an unusual extent.

The small amount of money paid into the Treasury for tuition by pupils living outside of this school district is a matter of public interest. A statement is submitted of the amounts received during the following fiscal years ending each on June 30th.

1886, Amount received.....	$ 625 00
1887, " "	490 00
1888, " "	1,067 25
1889, " "	608 50
1890, " "	996 45

The amount charged per annum for tuition for each pupil attending the High School is $50, and $20 for attendance at the District Schools. The following detailed statement will show the number of pupils and the amounts paid by them for tuition during the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1890 :

AMOUNT OF TUITION COLLECTED DURING FISCAL YEAR
ENDING JUNE 30TH, 1890.

DISTRICT SCHOOLS.

1 pupil 3 weeks.....	$ 1 50
1 " 6 "	3 00
1 " 13 "	6 50
8 " 1 quarter.....	40 00
2 " 1½ "	15 00
2 " 2 "	20 00
4 " 3 "	60 00
1 " 3½ "	17 50
6 " 4 "	120 00
	<hr/> $283 50

HIGH SCHOOL.

7 pupils 1 quarter	$ 87 50
4 " 2 "	100 00
3 " 3 "	112 50
8 " 4 "	400 00
	<hr/> $700 00

EVENING SCHOOL.

3 pupils.....	$12 95
Total	<hr/> $996 45

The foregoing statement indicates that your Board received for tuition a sum of money equal to the amount which ought to be received from fourteen pupils attending the District Schools and fourteen pupils attending the High School for the full scholastic year. This does not cover the number of pupils living outside of this school district, who attend the High and District Schools. Justice to the tax-payers of St. Louis and the overcrowded condition of school-rooms alike demand an immediate and an exhaustive investigation of this subject, and the exclusion from the Public Schools of all children living outside of this District who do not pay for tuition.

Respectfully submitted,

FIELDING MANSFIELD,
MORRIS J. LIPPMAN,
RICHARD BARTHOLDT.
